Helping Children Grow Through Grief

A bereavement support group for children

JOHN R. OISHEI

Children's Hospital

Children of all ages grieve

Helping Children Grow Through Grief is a bereavement support group for young people (5-18 years of age).

A child or teen experiencing the loss of a loved one may exhibit behavioral, physical or cognitive changes. Attending a support group of their peers who may be experiencing similar loss can help them express themselves and share feelings with others.

*“Some people come into our lives,
leave footprints on our hearts,
and we are never the same.”*

– Franz Schubert

Love leaves memories no one can take away

This children’s support group focuses on providing age-appropriate activities for expression of some common emotions felt after loss and an opportunity to voice memories.

Helping Children Grow Through Grief Group Meetings

All group meetings are facilitated by a child life specialist – professionals who are specially trained to help children and their families understand and manage challenging life events and stressful healthcare experiences. They are skilled in providing developmental, educational, and therapeutic interventions, supporting growth and development while recognizing family strengths and respecting different methods of coping.
